

Collaborative commissioning and delivery: is this the future?

Helen Byrne

Deputy Chief Executive and Director of Strategic Commissioning
NHS Croydon

Collaboration — is this the future?

Exciting times of change

- Politics and government
- Commissioning healthcare
- Delivering healthcare

Collaboration — is this the future?

Coalitions and partnerships

- At the heart of government
- Good for healthcare ✓

Collaboration — is this the future?

Challenging health

Our South London population faces significant health challenges:

- Mental health
- Cancer
- Respiratory disease

Collaboration — is this the future?

Challenging finance

- Financial and funding future uncertain
- National budget deficit means challenges across public sector
- Ever-increasing pressure to deliver greater:
 - Productivity
 - Efficiently
 - Quality and innovation

Collaboration — is this the future?

Partnership is the answer

Collaboration — is this the future?

Partnerships help us deliver better services, they:

1. Link local and national guidance
2. Help us address population needs
3. Allow us to work together better
4. Help us manage change

Collaboration — is this the future?

1. Linking local and national guidance

National guidance

“an improvement in health outcomes and a reduction in health inequalities”

Local guidance

“By 2013 we will improve the quality of life for people with long term conditions, through designing a whole system model...”

Collaboration — is this the future?

2. Partnerships give us capacity to understand and address population needs

- Intellectual and emotional demands
- Intertwining, complex needs
- Prevention and health promotion needs

Collaboration — is this the future?

3. Working together better

- More difficult to untangle partnerships
- More convincing proposals from partnerships
- Best use of resources/learning for each other
- Easier to manage funding challenges and changes
- Greater productivity, quality and innovation

Collaboration — is this the future?

4. Helps us manage change

Collaboration — is this the future?

Partnership is the answer

COLLABORATION — IS THIS THE FUTURE?

YES

Helen Byrne

Questions or comments?

For details on commissioning and partnership management contact:

Sima Chaudhury

HIV Commissioning Manager Voluntary Sector

Strategic Commissioning,
NHS Croydon,
13th Floor, Leon House,
Croydon,
Surrey,
CR0 9XT

Tel 020 8274 6111

Fax 020 8680 9032

email sima.chaudhury@croydonpct.nhs.uk